Emery County Commission Approves of Zoning Change for a possible nuclear power plant site

Castle Dale, UT - Gary Kofford, Chairman of the Emery County commission said “This was needed to support the Green River Industrial Park uses. We have been in discussion with several companies including a nuclear power plant developer. They like other companies need to see the level of commitment we have in attracting companies to provide jobs.”

“This zoning change now allows Transition Power Development to consider the Green River site on a more firm basis. The county has been very helpful and very serious about attracting jobs to this area.” commented company CEO Aaron Tilton. Transition Power Development has been conducting site evaluations throughout the southwest US and more particularly in this region of Utah.
